

Presenting the Dead to God

Name: _____

This chapter taught us about the Catholic Church’s practice of offering sacrifices for the dead. The Church offers a specific funeral Mass for a baptized Christian who has recently died. Through the funeral rites’ readings, prayers, and liturgical actions, the Church “commends the dead to God’s merciful love and pleads for the forgiveness of their sins.”¹

Like every Mass, a funeral Mass has a Liturgy of the Word. The readings assigned to funeral Masses “tell of God’s designs for a world in which suffering and death will relinquish their hold on all whom God has called his own.”²

This chapter’s Proclamation statement from the Book of Wisdom (page 253 in the Student Text) is taken from one of the readings often read at funeral Masses.

How does this passage from the Book of Wisdom inspire you to persevere in faith to the end of your life?

Answers may vary.

In a funeral Mass, the Church uses symbols like those used at Baptism to remind us that in Baptism, we enter new eternal life with Christ and receive grace that frees us from all sin and strengthens us to remain faithful to God until death.

B

A reminder of the saving waters of Baptism, when the deceased person became a member of God's family, the Church.
